Dear Sis.

I'm in the mood for scribbling so I thought I'd write once more.

Just received a letter from Stella. Didn't you and her were on such good terms. It was a surprise to me. Must say, things do change.

Something I had never mentioned before, are the big vineyards and gran like they have here. I can readily understand now why most people are such big wine drinkers. Alth seeing all the grapes. The wine grapes aren't very good though, and we are plannin' to stop eating them.

The folks tell me Junior is taking up music lessons. Good for them. Sure miss I were home now more than ever.

By the way, are you still working in the same place, and how come? Do you like it there. You say very little about your work in your letters. Tell me a little something.

'Bye now
 Pito.
